CONFLUENCE OF ORGANISATIONS PROMOTING POLICING STANDARDS (COPPS)

THE CONTEXT

The tumultuous technological and social changes fuelled by the internet and the social media are relentlessly changing the nature, intensity and the reach of crime. National boundaries are blurring. However, the same technology also opens up possibilities of strengthening the hands of our policewomen and men, placing enormous and unprecedented potential and possibilities in the fields of police governance, investigation, safety and security management as well as citizen-centric policing.

CHARTER

To enable a framework for active and responsive participation of stakeholders for better policing and standardisation of procedures, training and procurement.

STRUCTURE

BPR&D and volunteer partners ranging from NGOs, cyber experts, technology partners & academia.

Specialists, civil society and friendly police from other countries.

COPPS will be supported online with Centre for Citizen (C4C), a portal to promote better policing that is open to civil society and citizens.
C4C : ‘CENTRE FOR CITIZENS’

C4C, ‘Centre for Citizens’ is a forum for Citizens with regard to policing in India. The forum strives to improve quality of life in India by seeking participation of citizens towards efficient, effective and service oriented policing using the platform of technology.

The forum intends to engage with citizens, local officials, technical advisors, young leaders, non governmental organisations and ex-policemen by capturing their views, using technology, so that a transparent process to engage with the citizens could be facilitated.

Objectives

Develop a shared vision on universal standards of delivery of police services for varied situations. Determine progressive formats of internal security. Global digital platform for improving policing standards in India. Seeking ideas and feedback from citizens, professionals, academicians, expats and all other stakeholders on refining police response capabilities.

“Every Policeman is a Citizen in Uniform
Every Citizen is a Policeman without Uniform”

COMMUNITY POLICING

In a democracy, people are subject to law which they themselves create through their elected representatives. Therefore, they necessarily have to participate in the process of preventing violations of the enacted law. Community Policing is the process which seeks the responsible participation of citizenry in crime prevention at community level and helps in conservation of resources. The activities of community policing are built on robust system of police public partnership, engineered through regular interactions. Such interactions can prove to be effective platforms for conflict resolution and mitigating communal, social and political tensions. These interactions can be active platforms for spreading the awareness on drug abuse, cyber security, road safety and gender issues.

Community has gained currency across the world and is becoming the norm in all democratic societies. Their experience shows that by seeking the active cooperation of public in performance of police duties, the process of law enforcement becomes far more effective. Community Policing initiatives taken up in different states of this country are given below

a. Prahary- Our Scheme for Safety : Delhi Police
b. Saanjh : Punjab Police
c. Amcho Bastar Amcho Police : Chattisgarh Police
d. Ama Police : Odisha Police
e. Police for Community : Karnataka Police
f. Gender Sensitive Community Policing : Uttar Pradesh
The Programme seeks to build a bridge between the Police and the larger community through school students by inculcating ethics and values in them through indoor and outdoor activities.

The programme focuses on students of class VIII and IX. There is greater emphasis on field demonstrations and hands-on learning of the functioning of the Police through visits to Police Stations, Child Protection Homes, Old Age Homes, Traffic Police, etc. Learning also involves activities like group discussions, group activities and help of audio-visual mediums.
The Bureau of Police Research and Development through its workshops has identified several best practices innovated and adopted by various State Police Forces, conforming to the concept of SMART Policing. Many of these practices are efforts by individual officers and focus on service delivery. Others have been the result of efforts made by Police Hqrs. and have been institutionalised and implemented over a large area with the support of the State Governments concerned. A number of these practices can easily be adopted and replicated by other states with a little modification.

A successful model of state/UT is presented before experienced police officers and, if found useful, adopted as a national project. The project is further developed for pan-India applicability. The developed model is then rolled out nation-wide.

An impact assessment and evaluation of the model is carried out through independent agencies and the model is finally formalised.
